

Biography for Sherri Kroll

Sherri Kroll began her career with Middlesex Community Living in 1985. Over the years, she has held a variety of key roles within the organization, including Direct Support Staff, Manager, Director, and, since 2010, Executive Director. Her extensive experience and long-standing commitment to the organization reflect her deep dedication to the developmental services sector.

Sherri is actively involved at both regional and provincial levels. She has served as Chair of the Thames Valley Adult Development Service System Table, Co-Chair of the West Region Service System Planning Table, and Chair of the Provincial Executive Directors Group. In addition, she contributes to the Provincial Network for Developmental Services, where her leadership and advocacy continue to drive positive change across the sector.

A lifelong resident of Strathroy, Sherri has strong ties to her community. She is married and the proud mother of two adult children. Her personal journey was profoundly shaped by her son Jonah's diagnosis of an intellectual disability at 15 months of age. This experience has deeply informed her professional path, merging her personal and professional worlds into a single, unwavering passion: to support individuals with developmental disabilities in reaching their fullest potential and to promote the growth of inclusive, welcoming communities.
